

It is supposed that Guiteau will allow the trial to continue till about Christmas.

Colonel Keyes has been recommended for Postmaster at Madison. He has had the office twenty years.

The public school in Woonsocket, Rhode Island, boasts of a scholar who is 40 years old, who attends regularly, and expects to graduate in the spring.

Ezekiel Smith and wife, of Huntington, Vermont, had lived together fifty years, and a few evenings ago they lay down in apparent good health, and in an hour both were dead.

The latest from the Garfield monument fund is as follows: It has reached about $75,000 from dollar subscriptions. The States of Ohio, New York, and Iowa leading in the list of subscriptions.

There is a cartoon in Harper's Weekly for the week ending December 10, drawn by Nast, and entitled "From Grave to Gay"—a contrast between the funeral of President Garfield and the tricks, vanity, and egotism of Guiteau in court. There has been nothing that has so disgraced America as the Guiteau trial.

When the penitentiary of Kentucky becomes crowded, the kind old Governor pardons a lot of convicts to make room for others. During the past year he pardoned about two hundred. The Kentucky penitentiary is a place where murderers, assassins, forgers, robbers, and the like, can spend two or three years quietly without expense to themselves, and then go on their way rejoicing.

Mr. Speaker Keifer is having a regular contest with the greed after clerkships of the standing committees of the House. There are forty-two standing committees, and one hundred and forty-eight want chairmanships. It will take him nearly a week from this time before he will be able to accomplish the task of framing the committees, and however they are framed, there will still be discontent.

The Prohibition State committee have issued an address to the people of Wisconsin informing them that the Prohibition ticket got 13,000 votes and that the cause was never so strong as now. By the time there is another gubernatorial election, the leading prohibitionists will probably be convinced that running a State ticket with a view of defeating the Republican party, is too long and too crooked a road to temperance reform.

The Madison Democrats say: "Governor Rusk is tasting the bitterness as well as the intoxication of triumph. In connection with his associates, he has been in executive session for two days now, in a vain attempt to parcel out the demagogic patronage. Rumors of their efforts of the most piquantly varied description, fill the air, the whole outcropping in the startling assertion that fully one-half of the old hangers on are to be retained. It is fervently hoped that this is but rumor." The scramble for place under every new administration shows how prevalent and morbid is the desire to hold public positions in which the salaries are good and the work not very hard. The time has passed, if it ever existed, when men are invited to fill public positions. They not only scramble for them now but fight for them, and deep and sore are the wounds caused by a failure in the contest for the spoils of office.

The question as to whether prohibition does actually prohibit drinking in Kansas, is still being discussed and there is a wide difference on the subject. The latest contribution to the side of anti-prohibition comes from ex-Governor Charles Robinson, of Kansas. He has always been a temperance man, and was the leader of the New England colonists in the settlement of that State and there was a good deal of sympathy for "Bleeding Kansas," and when it cost much to be a resident of that State. The statements of Mr. Robinson should be entitled to some consideration, and they are given for the sole purpose of spreading the truth regarding the success or failure of the prohibition movement in Kansas. He says, "the habit of excessive drinking in the State is much more prevalent at the present time than ever before." He supports his assertion by abundant data, insists that the popular movement for prohibition has degenerated into a movement of mere political tricksters, and even bluntly warns the temperance people of other States not to contribute to the fifty thousand dollar fund asked to aid the enforcement of prohibition in Kansas, because the money, if secured, will be used only for political and selfish purposes. The prohibition leaders in Kansas are not very different from those in other States. They are after power. They want offices. They have political ambition, because if this was not so, they could do far more effective work than becoming assistant Democrats by putting a separate temperance ticket in the field for the purpose of defeating the Republican party.

The Milwaukee Republican says "a little common sense brought to bear on the subject of the Waukesha Industrial School management would be refreshing." But that little common sense will probably never be seen. There has always been more or less trouble connected with the management of that institution, and it is likely there will always be trouble. Captain Putnam managed the school with as much tact and ability as any superintendent who ever had charge of the Industrial school, and he was invited to leave. It will be taken for granted that the Industrial school for boys is a difficult one to manage. It contains one of the worst collections of boys to be found in the State. Some times—probably very often—corporal punishment is deserved. When to whip and when not to whip, is no doubt a very perplexing question. It would not be strange if a superintendent made mistakes, and it would be surprising strange if he failed to draw out criticisms on his management. There is a good deal of danger in submitting the charges which have recently been made against the institution, to an investigation. The State board of control ought to know whether or not there has been any inhuman punishment inflicted upon any of the inmates. The Republican states a sound principle when it says that "a public, formal investigation would give the stories of every bad boy to the world through the newspaper, and whatever might be the result of the investigation, the discipline of the school would be at an end. It would encourage every boy to manufacture stories of cruelty, and give him a grip on the superintendent."

ABOUT THAT GOVERNOR.
It is said that the Readjuster Governor of Virginia—Mr. Cameron—will bestow a greater part of the patronage of the new administration upon the more prominent editors of the State who did some effective service for him during the campaign.

About rewarding editors for valuable campaign services performed, brings to mind an incident which is well worth relating, as showing the difference between some men's idea of generosity and duty. It so happened several years ago that a man was elected to the executive of this State who was called the Farmer Governor. There was no thought in the mind of any person that he would be elected, and if an election was supposed possible, he never would have received the nomination. But by a strange combination of circumstances he was elected. During the canvass there was a certain editor whom we shall call Jud, for short, who did a deal of work for the Democratic candidate for Governor. He gave him the benefit of scores of specials in the Chicago Times and at no time did he slacken in his zeal for the election of his favorite candidate. His election was a surprise to everybody, and no one was more surprised than the farmer of Cottage Grove. He got mad on the morning after the election because his friend Jud mounted a horse and rode to his home to tell him he was elected. He thought it was a joke too cruel to be perpetrated.

But several weeks after the inauguration Jud was walking through the capitol park on an evening, and met the Governor. His Excellency happened to be in good humor, and spoke kindly to Jud saying—"Good evening, Jud, can't you come to my office a few minutes? I want to see you privately." Jud answered promptly in the affirmative. While the two were slowly walking toward the executive office there were many thoughts passing through Jud's mind. He could not help but think of the small mortgage on his little home and how soon it could be lifted. Then he thought of a new suit of clothes for himself, or a handsome dress for his wife, or probably something useful and valuable for the children. The executive office was reached, and in the quiet stillness of the evening, both took seats, the Governor occupying his accustomed place at the imposing gubernatorial desk. He unlocked a drawer and began to pull it out when he asked Jud, "How many children have you?" "Three," was the quick and cheerful answer. "Three?" replied the Governor, and saying that with evident surprise, the drawer was pushed back again and another one opened, when the Chief Magistrate of the State, stretching his generosity to the utmost length, picked up three oranges and handing them to Jud saying, "I want to make you a present, now take these home to your children!"

PERSONAL NOTES.
Mr. Isaac Bassett, the doorkeeper of the United States Senate, completed fifty years of public service on Monday, the 5th of December. He was first employed as a page on the recommendation of Daniel Webster, on the 5th of December, 1831.

Thomas Schofield, who is 91 years old, walked nine miles to renew his subscription to a New London, Connecticut, paper.

Miss Clara Louise Kellogg was given a full-dress reception at Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, on Thursday afternoon, and was serenaded by the Twentieth United States Infantry band. General Pope and staff were present, and a large number of other officers and ladies. Miss Kellogg says it was the finest personal reception she ever received.

William H. Vanderbilt has decided to give his daughter $250,000 in United States bonds, as a wedding present.

There are twins in Southern Missouri, named Benny and Lizzie Joyce, who hold successful revival meetings.

President Arthur has a life insurance to the amount of $100,000.

Senator Joe Brown, of Georgia, was 20 years old before he learned to read or write. At 31 he was elected to a judgeship, and at 37 he became Governor. He is now, at 68, a United States Senator, and might some day be President, but for the geographical location of his home and his politics.

MORE HORRIBLE.

Special to the Gazette.
VIENNA, Dec. 10.—The latest estimate of the number of the dead is 730, and the latest number reported as missing is 1,136. The Fourth gallery has not yet been explored, the fire still burning.

PITTSBURG HORROR.

Special to the Gazette.
PITTSBURG, December 10.—The fire at three o'clock this morning at Gibson Section destroyed a shanty occupied by 45 railway laborers. Seventeen were frightfully burned and ten taken out dead. Three more will die.

TWENTY YEARS.

Special to the Gazette.
CHICAGO, Dec. 10.—Ben Rister was sentenced to 14 years in the penitentiary, and Jack Stanners twenty years.

CONFLAGRATION.

Special to the Gazette.
CHICAGO, Dec. 10.—D. M. Osborn & Co's., four story brick warehouse, with contents (reapers and machinery) South Morgan street, was burned this morning. Loss, $320,000. Insurance, $165,000.

CLAIMED BY DEATH.

Special to the Gazette.
CINCINNATI, Dec. 10.—Ex-Congressman Bauning died this morning.

VIENNA.

Horrible Almost Beyond Conception, One Thousand Lives Lost.

VIENNA, Dec. 9.—Midnight.—The extent of the calamity has hitherto been much understated.

One thousand one hundred and thirty persons are announced at the police bureau as missing, and, assuming that many of these will turn up, it is feared that the total loss will not be much less than a thousand persons.

It is now probable that there 600 in the fourth gallery.

All the persons in the third row of the parquet perished.

Some persons who entered the theatre a few minutes after the fire was discovered remarked at the time that comparatively few escaped.

The theater holds 2,500.

Every place was occupied except the parquet and boxes, consequently the total loss may be found to be nearly 1,000. Three hundred and sixty tickets were issued for the fourth gallery seats for last night's performance.

Of these people about fifty have been found.

They had made their escape from the inside only to find death by suffocation in the passageway, which had no exit.

The rest were, up to three o'clock this afternoon, seen lying within the fatal gallery, vast barricades of human bodies.

About two o'clock the fourth gallery fell in, and the firemen are carrying out lumps of charred bodies without form, and far beyond the possibility of recognition.

Who these victims are will not be known until their relatives have announced them as missing.

HE REALIZES HIS DOOM.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9.—Guiteau begins to realize that his case is a desperate one. He sees that each day, whenever testimony such as that of to-day is given against him, brings one day nearer the gallows. He has grown very nervous and easily excitable, so that he was more turbulent to-day than he has been on any preceding day. At times he was like a wild beast at bay. He is a coward, and as tasting these days many times of death. He is afraid to keep quiet. He is sharp enough to see clearly that he has been but hard when, damaging evidence is brought out, and, wishing an exquisite mental torture, he contradicts frantically what he sees is destroying him. Hence his interruptions, which became so frequent to-day as to be almost unendurable.

The testimony of to-day supported admirably the theory of total depravity and broke down much of the little left of the original insanity theory. The friends of clients whom he had swindled, ministers of the gospel, lawyers, doctors, business men, with one exception, they and the same story to tell—that he was so far gone that their observation went, a shrewd rogue rather than an insane innocent. The exception was Counselor Shaw, of New York, whose testimony differed from that of the others in that he was able to detail a portion of a conversation—terrible in regard now, even then not lightly regarded—between the assassin and himself in 1872, wherein Guiteau announced his intention of winning a notoriety, if he had to imitate Wilkes Booth and kill a great public man to do it. The audience shuddered as Shaw calmly and distinctly related the incident, and gave the portion of the conversation referred to, while Guiteau grew so excited that he could scarcely articulate the abusive epithets which he showered on Shaw.

The testimony offered by prosecution lately has had an undoubtedly adverse effect upon the jury in the Guiteau case, and no doubt is now entertained that the verdict will be guilty.

SECRETARY BLAINE.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9.—Much has been said about the alleged efforts of Secretary Blaine to remain in the cabinet, but the truth is he was one of the first to insist upon retiring. The President said to a Republican Senator recently, that if Blaine had not insisted upon resigning he would have allowed Garfield's cabinet to have remained intact until the 4th of March; that Blaine would go out, and this compelled the breaking up of the cabinet.

APPOINTMENTS.

MILWAUKEE, Dec. 9.—The following appointments, in addition those telegraphed last night, were decided upon to-day: Robert McCurdy, of Oaklath, chief clerk of the State department; Charles Wedelstedt, of Madison, book-keeper, treasurer; C. P. Chapman, of Madison, adjutant general; E. E. Bryant, quartermaster general and George B. Carter, of Plattville; C. M. Foreman, of Madison; E. S. McBride, of Madison; Henry Luedzinger, of Monroe; B. J. Cattle, of Black River Falls; Peter Fagg, of Milwaukee; O. R. Olson, of Wausau, and B. F. Crum, of Madison, clerks of the State land office.

Alderman Tucker, Boston, says you may state that I have paid for medicine and treatment in 20 years $3,000, without receiving permanent benefit. Entirely cured of his disease (salt rheum) by Cuticura Remedies.

H. E. Carpenter, Esq., Henderson, N. Y., cured of Leucopis, of twenty years' standing, by the Cuticura Resolvent internally, and Cuticura and Cuticura Soap externally. The most wonderful case on record.

DOCTORS' BILLS.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9.—The physicians who attended President Garfield having resolved not to accept any remuneration Mrs. Garfield may tender. Congress will doubtless provide for the expenses and medical attendance. It is said that $25,000 will no more than repay Dr. Agnew and Bliss for the losses they suffered by the suspension of their practice.

THE GALLOWES.

Hanging of Hugh Hays at Montreal.

MONTREAL, Dec. 9.—Hugh Hays was executed in the jail-yard this morning for the murder of William Salter, a fellow convict in the penitentiary. He admitted his guilt, and expressed the deepest contrition for the commission of the deed, and said he did not know what impelled him to the act. He was executed without cap or anything over his face.

PENSION FRAUDS.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9.—The fact of a conspiracy to defraud the Government in the matter of pension claims, with the principal conspirators among the clerks in the Pension Bureau, was admitted by Secretary Kirkwood to-day. He refused to give any details further than to acknowledge that one arrest had been made and that others might follow, referring the inquiry to Commissioner Dudley for additional information. He did say, however, that he urged upon Mr. Dudley the vigorous prosecution and thorough investigation of the matter, this being, he said, far as was his duty to go. He doubted very much the advisability of making any further details public, for fear of defeating the ends of justice, and when the question was put to him directly as to whether the developments thus far had shown the amount of the claims fraudulently secured to be large he refused to give further information.

AN ARKANSAS AFFAIR.

MONTICELLO, Ark., December 9.—Howard G. Edmunds was hanged at Warren, twenty miles west of here, this afternoon for the murder of his sister-in-law, Miss Sallie Watson, in June last. Edmunds confessed his guilt, but this morning claimed that he was innocent and had made a false confession to appease threatened mob violence. At 1 o'clock he mounted the scaffold and the drop falling at 1:10, he died instantly. Five thousand people witnessed the execution.

BEECHER'S CHURCH.

New York, December 9.—The annual meeting of Plymouth church (Beecher's) society of Brooklyn, took place to-night. The membership is 2,411, an increase over the previous year of 184; receipts from pew rents, $42,000; other sources, $15,000.

An Incident of the Blockade.

A correspondent of the Boston Advertiser, discussing the subject of color blindness, relates the following as coming under his own experience when employed in the blockade of the port of Wilmington, North Carolina, during the war of the rebellion: "The ships on blockade duty got under way at sunset, and at dark moved to their regular stations, some going well in toward Fort Caswell and others further off, keeping under low steam and in a specified beat. To prevent as far as possible our own ships from mistaking and firing into each other, each supposing the other a blockade runner, as did happen more than once, my own ship getting three 24-pound shells from one of our own vessels, a system of challenging and answering signals by showing or flashing red or white light was established. As we all know the station or beat of each ship, we could usually tell with tolerable certainty what vessel was sighted. But, to prevent accidents, it was the rule for any ship doubting to challenge for that particular night. If no answering light was shown, or an incorrect one, the challenger had a right to fire. One night my own ship was challenged. We were so near that all hands on my vessel knew well what ship made the challenge. We answered by showing a red light for three or four seconds. Again we were challenged, and again we answered as before. All hands were at quarters. Almost immediately after our second answer the look-strain of the 100-pounder rifle on board the challenger was pulled, the gun, pointed directly at my ship, happily missing fire. Before the gun could be reprimed we were made out, and no harm done. The next day an interview was had with the commander of the challenging ship, and he was informed by me that his challenger was correctly answered, I myself seeing it done. Why our answers were not seen by his ship could not be made out. He informed me, however, that he had been many months in command of his ship, and never before had that gun missed fire."

A Moorish Dust-Man.

Two things are de rigueur in all books of Eastern travel; first, the windy dissertations on small vermin, without which no regular book of travels in any latitude can be considered complete; second, laudatory pictures of the general filthiness of Eastern towns, where we are led to believe that sanitary precautions are absolutely unknown. Will it be credited that one of the first things to catch my eye, as I looked down into the narrow street of Tetuan from my bed-room window that morning was a downright Moorish dust-man? There he was, in flowing robes and white turban, driving his mule before him, with its capacious basket paniers. He lifts up his voice in dismal howls, till the maid-of-all-work comes forth, bearing the daily refuse of her house in a large wooden bowl, which the Moor empties into his mule paniers with lofty dignity, and passes on to the next door. In fact, that peculiarly excellent system known to modern English sanitarians, at my factory serves me right; for, for centuries, the dead dog, and festering vegetable refuse (in the sacred interests of truth, I am forced to make these unsavory allusions), which, according to the best authorities, ought to litter the narrow street of a town below, are as non-existent as the sickening odors which ought to, and undoubtedly would, accompany them if there; and to sum up, this most thoroughly Eastern town of Tetuan is positively a place to live and flourish in, not merely a hotbed of plague and typhoid. Full of satisfaction at this interesting discovery of the Moorish dust-man, I was composing myself to await further revelations of Eastern life, when a heavy bundle of five-foot projected from the hoistrop directly above me came whizzing past my nose, and induced me to withdraw hastily from the window. It was the Jewish handmaid, sending down a morning's supply of food to her mistress, the cook, who stood expectant below at the house door.—Temple Bar.

Married Infidelity.

It is a great pity that people who are infelicitously married cannot worry along as best they may without making their wives public. Most people who seek relief in the divorce courts fail to find it. Instead of gaining the peace and comfort which they think is to follow on their legal efforts for freedom, they succeed in making themselves additionally unhappy and intensely ridiculous. "Grip and bear it," is, perhaps, a hard rule to follow. But it is better to endure than to court the absurd situations and the ridiculous criticisms which must follow on publishing matrimonial misery to a scandal-loving public.—Philadelphia Times.

A LIVELY MARKET.

Success continues to crown the efforts of the Christ church ladies to entertain the public and increase the church fund by a Christmas Market. There are many visitors who come and go, and all seem delighted. Last evening as a special entertainment some excellent music was given by Mrs. H. A. Smith, Mrs. C. B. Conrad, and by the Orpheus club. The music was pleasing, and all seemed to enjoy it heartily.

No little merriment was caused by the voting on the doll to be given to the most popular young man. The contest was a neck and neck race between R. M. Bostwick and Al. Kavelage, when a dark brown horse made a sudden start and fairly distanced all. It was no other than Frank Brown, the popular young cornetist, who is also known as the ever genial clerk in Prentice & Evenson's drugstore. Brown walked off with that doll as happy as if he had won a bride, leaving his ambitious rivals covered with the chagrin of losing the hand of the fair prize.

The elegant afghan was drawn by Charles Hemming, of the Rock County National bank. Wells Hay and George McKay captured the decorated set.

The voting continues on the officer's sword, the lady's watch and chain, the painting to be given the most popular physician, etc. The polls are to close at 10 o'clock to-night.

The vote on the sword shows this afternoon that Captain DeGraaf has 29 and Captain Smith 23.

Of the votes received on the watch and chain, Miss Hattie Lappin leads with 58 votes; Miss Ida Schickler has 50, and Miss Maud McKinney 40, others having received less.

Of the votes on the painting to be given to the most popular physician, Dr. Clara Normington leads, Dr. Humphrey standing second.

Last evening Margie Woodruff drew the willow cradle.

To-night is the last of the Fair proper, but Monday evening there is to be a closing dance, which promises to be an enjoyable affair.

Catarra. Clear head and voice, easy breathing, sweet breath, perfect smell, taste and hearing, no cough, no distress. These are conditions brought about in Catarra by the use of Sanford's Radical Cure. One bottle Radical Cure, one box Catarrhal Solvent and one Improved Inhaler, in one package, for $1.

—Hiram Morrill, Esq., is able to be out again.

—Mrs. H. A. Patterson is quite seriously ill.

—General James Bluff, of Darlington, is in the city, and will remain over Sunday.

—Colonel Johnson and family, of Beloit, have returned from their southern trip. The Colonel is just now suffering from a touch of rheumatism, but is expected to be soon himself again.

THE SHOE FACTORY.

The Wisconsin Shoe company completed its annual inventory and resumed work in full force to-day, with W. S. Webber as superintendent and L. N. Williamson as assistant superintendent. The company has done quite a successful business for the last two years, and will increase its production from fifty to sixty per cent the coming year. It is the intention to make five hundred pairs per day. In order to do so, it was voted to increase the capital stock of the company to $100,000 full paid stock, $25,000 of which was subscribed to-day. A part of the surplus of $13,000 has been divided. The dividends made were twenty per cent, ten per cent, in cash, and ten per cent in stock. About twenty-five thousand dollars of the capital stock remains to be taken.

HO. FOR THE HOLIDAYS.

Some Suggestions as to What to Buy and Where to Buy.

There are few cities which present such fine displays of goods, and at such reasonable prices, as Janesville, not only during the holiday season, but throughout the year. There are some very enterprising business houses here, and the Gazette desires to remind the public of a few of them.

HANCHETT & SHELDON,

the well known hardware men, are doing an unusually lively business. They keep a full line of the best makes of stoves, and have a large trade worked up among the blacksmiths and wagon makers of this part of the State, keeping on hand at all times a full supply of all iron and wooden tools. In the way of house-furnishing goods there is a great variety from which to select very practical holiday presents.

BRITTON & KIMBALL

are always to the front in the furniture line. They keep as elegant goods as can be found in the larger cities. Some of their parlor and bedroom sets, their fancy chairs, lounges, tables and shades are worthy a place in any expectation. They have also gathered a large variety of goods, at all prices, specially adapted to the holiday trade, many of them being decidedly unique, handsome, and useful.

SMITH & BOSTWICK

the old and trusty dry-goods house is still booming with business, their trade never having been so heavy as now. Their stock is an immense one, and great care has been taken in buying, so as to afford their customers, not only bargains, but the very newest and best goods to be had in any of the great markets. Their carpet stock is one of the largest ever shown here. Their cloak department is also extra well stocked. One can see here many articles, any of which would make a most acceptable present.

W. A. WHEELER

has an extraordinary showing of crockery and house-furnishing goods, dainty and unique dishes of all sorts, ornaments and novelties without number. Those who have inspected stocks of this kind in Chicago and Milwaukee freely say that there is no need of going away from home. There is almost a bewildering display of beautiful goods displayed at Wheeler's.

E. T. FOOTE

is a veteran in the clothing business, and those who want to dress up, or who want to get sure protection from Jack Frost's attacks, can here find as good and as handsome garments as there are in the land. The ready-made and the custom department are both kept busy, and the supply of gents' furnishing goods, hats, caps, etc., is a varied and pleasing one.

CROFT & WHITON,

in the drug line, stand high. Their store is well supplied with all things expected to be found in a first class drug store. Now that the holiday season is approaching special attention is being given to various articles which are in demand for gifts. Their display of toilet articles and novelties, perfumery cases, cut glass bottles, combs, mirrors, etc., etc., is very attractive.

SEASIDE OYSTER HOUSE.

This new enterprise is a welcome one in Janesville, and is supplied with fresh fish of all sorts, oysters, lobsters, and various delicacies in that line, is especially appreciated just now. There are many things in this line which one has never been able to purchase in Janesville before.

WEBB & HALL.

always have a brilliant display of silverware, jewelry and precious stones, but this season the rich array is a dazzling one, and needs to be seen to be appreciated. They have some of the richest goods ever brought to this city.

GREEN & MICE

have firmly established themselves in the crockery line here, and their store is a favorite resort for those who want to find something nice for Christmas, and who don't know exactly what they want. There is a great and pleasing variety from which to select, and no one to attractive little novelties. Handsome lamps, statuary, vases, Majolica ware, decorated ware, fancy pitchers, in fact a host of articles, from which to choose.

WM. M. ENDERBIDGE

still presides over the Empire Drug Store, on Main street. Besides the regular stock which is complete in all respects, and most carefully handled, he has a splendid showing of Christmas goods. He is having a large trade on chamois skin underwear also, which is in demand with the advancing cold weather.

SMITH & SON.

This name is familiar to all. Their great clothing house is one of the enterprising of which Janesville proudly boasts. Their stock in every department is large enough to do a wholesale as well as a retail business. They are most one price, and that price is marked open and above board, so that when one looks at a garment the figures can be plainly seen. Their supply of gents' furnishing goods is as fine as can be found anywhere, and those desiring to give practical and beautiful presents to gentlemen friends can easily find such here.

LESLIE TREAT

looks after the demands for boots and shoes with rare good judgment and enterprise. He handles only good goods, and is content with small profits. There is no better place than Treat's to buy anything in this line.

A. J. ROBERTS, the druggist, has always had a good holiday trade, for he secures such novel and elegant toilet goods, and other articles, while in the home staple line he has everything needed.

JAMES BUTTERLAND & SONS'

bookstore is one of the places that every one should visit, and visit often. It is packed with special goods for the holiday trade, and is crowded with works of art, and of literature. No finer display can be found anywhere, and visitors to this city always express surprise at the size and variety of the stock.

PRENTICE & EVENSON

have a beautiful drug store opposite the post-office, and their business is always lively. They keep choice, nice goods, and take pride in keeping up their well known reputation. Their selection of holiday goods for their trade, they have shown the same care, good taste and enterprise, and there are some most elegant articles displayed there.

AROBIE REID'S

dry goods stock presents an excellent chance for gift-hunters as well as for those seeking wise purchases in the regular line. Mr. Reid is full of enterprise, and allows himself not to fall behind any in his zeal in providing his patrons with the newest styles and patterns, the best makes, and the most serviceable goods and pleasing novelties.

F. S. LAWRENCE & CO.,

are having a fine trade in the book and stationery line. Their stock now has a beautiful reputation. They are displaying embracing many elegant articles, and many unique and beautiful gifts can be found here as at any place in the city. All should surely visit this model store.

FRED SONNEBORN'S

clothing house is centrally located, in the Myers' house block, and is a popular place to trade. His stock is very large, and a fit is sure to be found. Everything useful for a well dressed, comfortably dressed, man or boy can here be found, and the prices are as popular as the goods.

J. A. DENNISTON

should be called upon for delicacies and new dishes for the table; for confectionery, fruits, fancy boxes of caramels, in fact tempting edibles of all kinds.

E. R. HEIMSTREET

the druggist, is known far and near, and is thoroughly established in a prosperous business. He has a model store, well stocked, and prides himself on keeping many desired articles not to be found elsewhere in the city. He always has novelties, elegant toilet articles, most excellent perfumes, and cases, in fact many articles from which to select.

KEEP INSURED.

The holiday festivities should not cause any to forget to keep their property insured.

Mark Ripley has an excellent line of sound companies, and is so well known as a reliable and business-like agent, that patrons feel safe in entrusting their interests to him and to the companies he represents.

Dimock & Hayner are known far and near as straightforward, able insurance men, and few agencies have such a large and strong line of companies. An insurance policy taken out with them is as good protection as a man can get anywhere in this world.
